The ice moved opposite town on Friday afternoon but was held by a jam at the lower bend. It moved again on Saturday and on Sunday morning it ran clear for a time. On Monday morning a rise of water carried out the loose ice and cleared the river for the season.

SERMONS suitable to the occasion were preached in the Methodist church yesterday, Easter Sunday, by the pastor, Rev. G. W. Dean. The text of the morning sermon was from John 19:30, "It is finished." The evening text was from 1st Thessalonians, 4:16, "The dead in Christ shall rise first."

There was a large attendance. The text was from Ecclesiastes, "Let us hear the conclusion of the whole matter: Fear God and keep his commandments, for this is the whole duty of man."

THE Easter services in St. Joachim's church yesterday were more than usually impressive. The church was decorated with flowers and suitable inscriptions. Mass was celebrated by the Rev. Father MacLachlan and the choir rendered "Winter's Mass," a most difficult composition, very effectively. The evening service was conducted by Rev. Father Lacombe, who preached in French from the text, "He is the resurrection and the life."

Geo. HUTCHISON returned from a business trip to Calgary on Thursday's train. He did not bring the car of horses advertised, as they could not be got together while he was in Calgary owing to unfavorable weather.

A GOVERNMENT bridge contractor of Pembroke, Ont., has written to acquaintances in Edmonton respecting the possibility of securing building stone, timber, etc., for the proposed bridge across the Saskatchewan, as he intends tendering on it.

Messrs. Creagh & Turnock, of the Calgary Tribune, have been committed for trial for libel, and have been admitted to bail in the amount of $4,000. Other suits are in progress against them in the same matter. The Tribune is running just as usual and is as lively as ever.

TRAVEL has been less impeded by the ice moving out of the river this season than usual. Crossing with teams ceased on Monday, April 8th, but passenger traffic has not been interrupted at all. It could either be carried on by boat and ice or by boat altogether.

THE Vance farm of 320 acres in the Poplar lake settlement was sold by auction on Saturday afternoon. It was purchased by John Brown for $1,000, cash in 30 days. The improvements were not large, but the land and location were good, so that the price is considered small.

W. J. SUFFEL has just returned after a visit to the United States. Mr. Suffel came to this district last year from Washington, and is satisfied he has selected the right spot. He goes west to-morrow.

SPRING seedings in full blast to-day over the district. The date is moderately early and the condition of the soil could not be better. The spring snow falls which have occurred have moistened the ground sufficiently to ensure the grain getting an early start, which means a sure crop in this region. An early spring does not always mean an early start for the grain, but in this case it does. The past season being very dry there was all the more need that the present spring should be moist.

AS Alberta's settler writing to The Week, says: "Any remarks I should make with regard to rates on the Canadian Pacific Railway would be superfluous, as it must be quite obvious to any one outside the ranks of the professional politicians that something must be wrong with a system by which a railway has a monopoly, and the freight and passenger rates are so high that the old time ox cart and stage coach still compete profitably with the railway."

A MEETING of the Edmonton Lacrosse club was held on Friday afternoon last. The following officers were appointed for the season of 1895. Dr. McInnis, president; T. W. Lines, 1st vice-president; J. J. Dunlop, 2nd vice-president; J. W. T. Henry, secretary and treasurer; Mr. Fulton, captain; Dr. H. C. Wilson was elected patron. Practice nights will be every Monday and Wednesday at 6 p.m. near the race track. The colors of the club to be white jerseys and dark blue breeches. As much practice as possible is to be done, with the view of meeting Calgary on the 24th May.

A MEETING of the Bicycle club was held on Friday evening last in the town hall. The following officers were appointed: Hon. president, S. S. Taylor; president, J. Graham; secretary and treasurer, A. H. Goodwin; J. Graham was recommended as consul. The initiation fee was placed at $2.00. It was resolved that all ladies in Edmonton riding bicycles be admitted as honorary members of the club. A part of the programme of races to take place on the 24th of May, will be half mile, one mile, five miles, and three mile team race, other races to be fixed later on. The secretary was instructed to write to Calgary, Lethbridge, McLeod and Medicine Hat, inviting them to take part in the races to be held on the 24th May.

They report in places gold was found in good paying quantities, if provisions could have been obtained at any reasonable figure, but flour can hardly be obtained at all. Some miners in there at present are nearly out, and all the flour in that part of the country is known to a pound. The boats are expected to make an early trip this year, but many of the camps will be entirely out of flour long before the boats get there.

BUTTER.

The butter question is one of the first importance to the farmers of Alberta, both in the present and for the future. This is the cattle country of Canada, from the United States boundary to the northern limit of the district at the 60th parallel, and anything that tends to profit in connection with the rearing and keeping of cattle is of interest and importance to the men who keep the cattle. To the new settler and particularly the new settler of Northern Alberta the making and selling of butter is the most important feature of the cattle raising industry, and therefore anything that affects the producing cost or selling price of butter affects him. During the coming election he will be required to decide whether or not the trade policy of the present administration has a good or bad effect upon his profits in butter making. It is of course universally admitted, and therefore may be taken for granted, that the present protective tariff does increase to the farmer the cost of everything or almost everything he has to buy in the way of manufactured articles. As the cost of his living is thereby increased the cost of his labor in the production of his butter, as well as of his other farm products, is increased over what it would be under a revenue tariff. If it costs the farmer on behalf of himself, his family and his hired help $100 a year more to live under a protective than it would under a revenue tariff, unless that $100 is made up by extra facilities for production or extra prices received for products by reason of protection it is a loss to him and must be deducted from the profits on his year's operations. As long as it is a matter of deduction from profits there is not much to be said, but when by reason of low prices of products the amount has to be added to actual losses on the year's operations, the question becomes interesting not only to the farmer but to the business men, professional men, mechanics and others whose profits so largely depend on the profits of the farmer. If the farmers' operations are profitable the country flourishes. If his operations result in loss business becomes stagnant in all its branches. It is a question then that is of interest to all parties, if the protective policy which increases the cost of making the butter to the farmer also increases the selling price of that butter by as much as, or more than, that increased cost. If it does not it is a policy which takes from the legitimate profits of the farmer and thereby takes from the profits of those whose profits depend upon him. As to whether the protective tariff of 4¢ a pound keeps up the price of butter or not the fact that at present throughout Alberta and for that matter throughout Canada at this season of the year, when butter is generally at its dearest, it is cheaper than it was ever before known to be at any season, should be a sufficient answer. While the protective policy has been singularly effective in keeping up prices of the articles which the farmer has to buy it has been as singularly ineffective in keeping up the price of butter. But the advocates of protection say that, admitting the extra cost of production by reason of protection and the present low prices notwithstanding protection, the price is even now higher by the amount of the duty than it would be if the duty were removed. As to that argument, is the first place no one wishes to remove the duty altogether. For the sake of getting the tariff in respect of manufactures down to a revenue basis, say about 20 per cent., the farmers are willing that the so called protection on their products should also be reduced to the same basis. Valuing foreign butter laid down at the Canada line at 10¢ a pound this would be a protection of 2¢ a pound; so that admitting for the sake of the argument that protection does protect, the difference between the protective and the revenue tariff would be 2¢ and not 4¢ a pound, even at the minimum price. Admitting again for the moment that protection is given to the amount of 2¢ a pound, he would be a poor farmer indeed who would not make more on the 10 to 100 per cent reductions on the other features of the present tariff than he would lose on the 10 per cent reduction in the alleged protection on butter. As a matter of fact, as soon as the home supply of butter exceeds the home demand protection ceases to protect, and as the supply of butter in Canada has almost always been in excess of home demand the Canadian farmer who has been persistently paying and voting for protection has not been receiving any, except in isolated cases; and these isolated cases owing to continued home production and assisted outside competition have ceased to exist. Whatever advantage Alberta may have enjoyed in the past in respect to protection on her butter when she had no butter to export she certainly does not enjoy now that she has butter to export, as the farmers and business men know to their cost, without any necessity for a long explanation on the subject. If the present duty of 4 cents a pound actually means 4 cents of the present price of the farmer's butter it is the duty of the government which is pledged to protection in the interests of the farmer to increase the price of butter to the farmer forthwith by increasing the amount of the duty. If the government does not do this in the present depressed condition of the butter trade it is either because they do not want to give the farmers their proper share of the benefits of the protective policy or because the policy cannot be used to benefit the farmer. The proof that the latter is the case is afforded by the action of the administration in proposing to buy butter at a certain fixed price for shipment to England as a means of keeping up the price, instead of taking the simple method of increasing the amount of the import duty. The only reason the latter course was not taken was because the protective government well knew that protection did not protect the farmer; and that as it could not keep up the price of butter it could not increase the price. As a matter of fact this idea of bonusing the butter industry arose from the desire to draw attention at once from the palpable failure of the protective policy and from one very prominent result of the vigorous Australian trade policy of the government by which butter made under bonus from the Australian government is brought across the Pacific ocean by bonus from the Canadian government to compete in Canada and England with Canadian butter made without bonus and under the disabilities of a protective tariff, and which has to pay for its haul to the Eastern Canadian sea board rates of freight nearly if not quite as great as the Australian butter pays from Australia to England passing over the same railroad on its way.

The reason why protection protects the Canadian manufacturer is because the manufacturer's market is within the country covered by the protective tariff, and his output can be restricted at will. The reason why protection does not protect the Canadian farmer is because the farmer's market is outside the country affected by the protective tariff and because the farmer's output cannot be restricted at will. If Canada consumed more butter than it produced protection would protect to some extent, but when Canada produces more butter than she can consume protection does not protect, and would not if the duty were a dollar a pound. If farming is to be profitable in Canada and particularly in Alberta butter must be a staple, which means that more will be made than will be used at home, and that butter must be made for export: in which case protection does not protect to increase the price of butter, therefore it is not necessary; but as it protects to increase the cost of production and thereby to decrease the profits of butter making, it is in the interest of the butter industry that protection should cease.

HOLDING BUTTER.

The Montreal Trade Bulletin on the subject says: "Regarding butter our English correspondent writes under date of March 16th, as follows:—There is some Canadian butter in London, but the price is painful to record—top rate 60s. This would mean about 12¢ at Montreal; and if it refers to some of the Canadian creamery that was bought by English houses last July, and shipped in the fall, it will show a big loss, as June make cost 18¢ to 19¢ here during the first half of July. This is further proof of the disastrous consequences of holding butter for speculative purposes. The time has gone by for storing summer creamery in refrigerators until the fall and then shipping it to England. English consumers prefer butterine and other fresh flavored imitations to old creamery; for however carefully kept, the latter loses its sweet, fresh and rosy flavor whenever it is held for any length of time, although its texture may remain perfect. Sweden, Norway, Denmark, France and the increased number of private dairies in England have so accustomed the English people to fresh flavored butter that even the poorer classes will buy nothing but the fresh article. Of course there is a market for stale and inferior stuff, but that is only wanted on the other side to grease axles with. The Antipodean product having brought the winter level of values in the English market almost down to a summer basis, the theory of storing Canadian summer creamery for winter shipment is knocked into 'smithereens.' For about the one hundred and first time the Trade Bulletin again affirms that unless our summer creamery, which is as fine as that produced in any other country, can be placed on the foreign market in a strictly fresh condition, it will simply be a waste of time and energy in attempting to develop the export butter industry. If Canadians would avoid a repetition of seeing the top price of their summer creamery quoted in the London market in spring of 1896 at 60s, they must abandon the holding system, and ship it fresh, before its delicate grass flavor and aroma have evaporated.

Winnipeg Commercial Saturday April 6th: Farmers are now into their spring work. The weather was very fine all the week, though some districts are rather too dry to make conditions favorable for seeding. More seedling could have been done than has been done this week so far as the weather conditions were concerned, as many farmers think it was rather too early to sow their grain. There has been quite a brisk demand for press drills this week, this being the feature of the implement trade. There has also been a demand for farm help, mostly for young men who would accept moderate wages. In the city, contracts for building are now being let and labor is better employed.

PONT SASKATCHEWAN.

Found dead in his room, on the floor, was the news which saddened the hearts of all the acquaintances of poor old Jim Reid, this afternoon. The deceased came here about 1874. Was one of the genuine stamp of the old gold miner—hearty, bluff, honest and always ready with a genial story and ready to assist any person needing it; a general favorite with all classes and creeds. Mr. Reid was born in Ireland and, like a number of his countrymen, got the California gold fever. He arrived in San Francisco in 1858, and the tales he could tell of his adventures for the next 20 years would fill a good sized volume. Several times he had made his "pile" and lost it again, with the characteristic carelessness of the old miner for gold. Thousands of dollars would slip through the fingers in a few days, which had taken a lot of hardships to secure. Always kind, and charitable, he was a man who made few enemies. A man of no education, and yet always posted on everything going on in the outside world as well as in the district, and one of the shrewdest men in it. Amongst his most intimate friends of the old timers of the Edmonton district were Messrs. John Brown, Edward Carey, Jas. Gibbons, Wm. Cost, Donald Ross and Tom Barilie, all representative men and old miners, who will miss their old friend in a greater degree than we who have only had the pleasure of knowing him for a few years. Like nearly all old miners Mr. Reid had lived alone for years, and unfortunately died with no one near him in his last moments; although surrounded with friends who would have gladly attended him. For the past two years he had been complaining of a pain in his side, but could not be persuaded to leave his own home and receive proper care and medical attention until too late. It was only a short time ago he changed his mind, and came over to the police hospital, where everything possible was done to assist him by Major Grossbach and all of his command, as well as Dr. Watson, who spared no skill or attention. In fact so much did he improve that he would not remain any longer with his friends on this south side of the river. The funeral is to take place to-morrow morning at 11 o'clock, owing to the ice being so bad, very few people from the town will be able to pay their last respects to the dead.

We notice that the "big" like promises of Calgary are still to the fore, and that Jimmy Reilly and a few other political hawks have been airing themselves on provincial autonomy. Not that they think it is necessary for the welfare of the whole of Alberta, but simply the little patch of about one mile by two miles, known as the city of Calgary. Calgary to be the capital; Calgary to be head of half a dozen railways running to nowhere of any importance to Alberta; Calgary to be the head of a lot of useless schemes as long as we can get plenty of money to spend in and about it; Calgary to have all the appointments for running the proposed provincial autonomy. Calgary's motto is "The end justifies the means;" but to get down to practical business the following advice is given gratis: 1st, Let Alberta have more representation in the Dominion house; 2nd, Drop all talk of provincial autonomy, and advocate that the government give every farmer living in central and Southern Alberta free transport for himself, family and stock to Northern Alberta and also a patent for the same amount of land and pay for whatever improvements he may have in his present abode. In this way the settler will be ahead and the government be in pocket thousands of dollars, and the whole district of Alberta benefited. Five years from now will be plenty of time to talk about "provincial autonomy," and fifty years from now, about irrigating such a vast extent of country in Central and Southern Alberta as is now spoken of.

OLDS.

Snow fell all day Tuesday.

Trading operations are now in full swing and there is every prospect of a good season.

The chinook greeted us on Wednesday morning and soon the snow had all disappeared.

F. Oliver, the liberal candidate, gave an address in Walker's hall on Saturday evening to a good audience.

The prairie fire raged here all day Monday, but luckily the snow commenced to fall at night, which prevented it from doing any considerable damage.

The creamery committee call a meeting for to-day (Thursday) for the purpose of pushing the building operations which have been somewhat neglected lately.

G. B. Batho who has been on a visit to England arrived home last Thursday. He has sold his interest in the St. George's hotel to F. W. Firth. The hotel will now be run by F. W. Firth as proprietor.

A few of our townsmen went shooting geese last night (Wednesday) and people wondered how Harry managed to keep quiet enough to get the only geese, as he has never been known to keep still for so long a time before.

F. W. Hammill leaves here to-morrow (Friday) for Winnipeg, where he goes to finish the Wesley College, which was commenced last spring. He has cut a sample of stone from the quarry here for the Regina exhibition, and pronounced it the best for monumental purposes he has cut in the country.

LEDUC GLEANINGS.

The section men are loading another car of earth for garden purposes in Medicine Hat.

The school is nearing completion and our enterprising trustees are busily engaged in negotiating for a teacher. They intend opening the school on the 1st May.

R. Featherstone contemplates starting a lumber yard, also an implement business, for both of which there is a big opening. We wish Mr. Featherstone much success.

Eight more cars of settlers effects came on Tuesday's special, 2 for J. H. Shoberberg, 2 for H. A. Griffith, 1 for G. T. Simonson and 1 for Mr. Moren of Kansas, and 1 for G. Shantz of Minnesota. This makes 16 cars since the 25th March. All are settling to the west and seem to be highly pleased with the country.

There is a big rush now for buildings to rent. Most of the incoming settlers are hunting for houses of some description to store their furniture in till they locate.

Others want to rent dwellings for periods ranging from one month to six, and quite a few are seeking to rent farms for the first year. The principal drawback to the many land hunters is the creeks and rivers which have overflowed and carried away all the bridges.

Owing to a certain school section in this vicinity being so favorable for settlement, the question propounded daily is, on what terms and price might a settler procure ownership to the same in the event of him squatting on it? and as the different parties vary and might be misleading, it is the writer's wish that the editor enlighten our burden by answering this question. One more question is also asked: Is there any such company in existence as the Canadian homestead company, as different parties have recently applied for entry on certain sections in this neighborhood and have been declined entry by the agent on the grounds that the land desired was held by some such company. The writer has exhausted no little effort in trying to solve this question and now finally decides in the negative. If there is such a company please state what lands are reserved for them.

ELECTION ADDRESS.

To the electors of Alberta.

GENTLEMEN.—As the nominee of the convention of Alberta liberals which was held recently at Calgary, and having been assured of a strong support by the patrons of industry in Northern Alberta, as well as at the solicitation of a large number of independent conservatives in this part of the country, I have the honor to offer myself as a candidate for the representation of Alberta in the Commons at the approaching general election. The stand which I take with the full knowledge and consent of those who have tendered me their support is that of an independent as to party, but not as to principle. On the main question at present at issue between the liberal and conservative parties, I understand that the organizations and individuals tendering me their support have done so with the wish and expectation that I would and will so far as lies in my power support the policy of a tariff for revenue as against the policy of a tariff for protection, which is the declared policy of the present government; on the ground that the protective policy discriminates unjustly against the western producer in favor of the eastern manufacturer.

Although holding strongly with the liberal party and also the patron organization on this point, I have not bound myself to either of these because I believe that the first duty of the single representative of so great a country holding such great possibilities as this district of Alberta should be to use his every energy for the further development of this country and the realization of these possibilities; as he can not if he is to be subject to restraint by the exigencies of any party. This constituency has had party representation during the past eight years, has been represented by a member of the party in power then and now. If the results have been satisfactory, that principle should be continued. If not it should be changed. It is because I believe that this system of party representation has been gravely injurious to this district that I have consented to make the personal sacrifice involved in my candidature, and because, so far as I knew, no other person was likely to come forward to advocate these or like views.

In a region so vast and varied as Alberta it would be impossible for any man at any time to define all the points of policy that would affect each locality, therefore I do not attempt to do so here. I hope from time to time, however, in the course of the contest, to have the opportunity to discuss fully with the electors at most of the principal centres of population, all matters that may come up for discussion, in whatever shape they may appear. That such a vast region, having such a large population and such important interests should be accorded only one representative is as plain a case of injustice as is required to show the glaring failure of party representation to secure the people in even their simplest rights. The matter of railway extension and railway rates particularly in the north and the question of irrigation in the south seem to be the great questions affecting the interests of the district with which parliament will from time to time have to deal. I need not point out that while these are vital questions to Alberta, they are not party questions at all, and it is all the more necessary that your representative should be in a position to advocate your interests regard to them in parliament without party hindrance even if he has to do it without party support.

Speaking generally I may say that I will support a policy of development for Alberta and while I will not bind myself to ask for favors for any section or interest I will bind myself to do all in my power to see that each section and every interest receives fair and equal treatment.

In conclusion I will say that although I have no personal interest to serve or ambition to gratify by entering upon this contest, yet having entered upon it in good faith I shall do all I can to win, and ask for the active assistance of every man who believes that the success of the principles which I have been selected to advocate would be in the interest of this constituency and of the country.

Respectfully Yours,
FRANK OLIVER.
